MANILA — A former Commission on Elections (CCE) official, Virginia Garcillano, is in the country and ready to face any investigation if ordered by the courts, his wife said last night.

"He is not a fugitive here," said his wife, who said in a telephone interview. "He is in the country and ready to face any investigation if
 ordered by the courts."

Garcillano was interviewed by ABS-CBN television news after former
 Sen. Francisco Tang and the former Commissioner of the Commission on Elections had flown out of the Philippines to the United States, Manila, according to ABS-CBN television news.

Garcillano, a former CCE official, was interviewed by the Philippine Daily Inquirer on Monday.

"I am in the country and ready to face any investigation if ordered by the courts," she said.

The ABS-CBN news anchor said that she had spoken to her husband on Monday.

Garcillano is the owner of a property in the Philippines. She said she was ready to face any investigation if
 ordered by the courts.

Erap exec, ex-generals summoned

By Luigi A. del Puerto

A CENSET secretary in the administration of deposed President Joseph Estrada and two retired generals have been summoned to appear before police in connection with the investigation of a military intelligence agent implicated in allegations President Macapagal-Arroyo charged in the last election.

Police went out last week to arrest General Jacobo Mariano and Arroyo aide Gen. Jose Antonio Reyes, former head of the National Capital Region Criminal Investigation and Detection Group task operations yesterday.

Doble said a subpoena had been prepared for former agent-in-charge Mariano (alias) and Reyes. He said he had not yet been served.

Doble is investigating the case of Tigr. Valde Doble of the Manila group, Service of the Armed Forces of the Philippines (SAF).

General Doble, a former deputy chief of the National Office of Investigation, had identified Doble as the source of an alleged wiretapped telephone conversation purportedly showing that he had been in contact with former President Estrada. Doble had provided former President Estrada with a copy of a letter from the National Capital Region Criminal Investigation and Detection Group task operations yesterday.

Doble said the money had come from former agent-in-charge Mariano (alias) and Reyes. He said he had not yet been served. Doble said the money had come from former agent-in-charge Mariano (alias) and Reyes. He said he had not yet been served.

Police officials declined to elaborate on why the two generals and Mariano were being summoned after that. They were mentioned by Doble in his letter to Mariano and Reyes, who reportedly later headed a group of retired generals who were around Mariano after the May 15 poll giving military command to President Arroyo.

Also yesterday, Doble said police had been in touch with Mariano's brother, General Mariano Mariano, and Mariano Mariano, identified as a close associate of the early agent, and that the two corroborated Doble's claim that they saw the money when it was handed over to Doble at the Imperial Hotel in Quezon City sometime in April and that they received part of it.

Doble said an affidavit received by Doble showed he gave P200,000 to his father, P750,000 to Mariano and another P200,000 to his brother-in-law, Gen. Mariano Mariano.

The affidavit has not been received, although some of its contents had been submitted to inspectors.

Doble reportedly showed up at the San Carlos Seminary where Doble had taken sanctuary three days after Doble announced his withdrawal on June 10 Doble's resignation issued after Arroyo later ordered in Manila to claim that the body agent was being illegally detained by Doble. Doble was brought out of the seminary by Bishop Marcelo Villegas on June 12.

Officials later said that Doble was being investigated in connection with the charge of illegal detention brought against him by Doble's wife. Doble's wife and her husband have been allowed to talk to Doble, Doble's whereabouts are not known.

Police have also issued a report, Doble said, and said that General Mariano was continuing to communicate with Doble after his arrest.

Protests to greet GMA in HK

CELEBRATIONS—A Filipino-led group, saying that President Ma has been a great president, is planning to meet with support workers during her scheduled one-day stop in Hong Kong and is organizing a protest when the President arrives here.

The President is scheduled to meet with business leaders and officials in the city to discuss development for the Philippines during her Hong Kong visit, the first of a series of foreign trips aimed at raising awareness in the country.

"The President would like to tell business investors that, despite the political challenges in the country, the economy continues to grow," her spokeswoman, Press Secretary Aquino-Sanchez, told REX radio in Manila yesterday.

The trip, which will last for only 12 hours, comes amid a political storm back home, with opponents accusing her family of pocketing huge PDAI-pending payoffs. They're also alleging that the rigging of the 2009 election after a rape of her opponent's phone conversations with a top official official helped.

Ms. Aquino has ordered an investigation of the graft accusations, but has refused to directly comment on the vote fraud allegations. Her campaign has moved to investigate the case involving her family.

The United Philippines in Hong Kong, which calls itself an alliance of migrant organizations—and it will try to influence Ms. Aquino about the alleged vote-rigging. The group also said the President should meet with the thousands of Filipino workers in Hong Kong.

"What have done the have with the Filipino community here? What does she have to tell them?" said the group's secretary general, Antonio Rodriguez, told in a statement.

The group plans a public protest at the Philippine consulate.

In Manila, Hong Kong will be the first stop of the President's visit to the world not to be able to meet with the Filipino community.

Among those she's scheduled to meet are Tony Brock, the former head of Hong Kong's Independent Commission Against Corruption and later Ms. Aquino's anti-corruption adviser, and despite her history there Victor Fung, who will host a lunch in her honor.

Reported in the headlines are representatives from several leading companies in Hong Kong, including Singapore Holdings, American International Holdings Ltd., JPMorgan Chase and Bank of America.

"President Gloria is expected to tell the Hong Kong businessmen that the Philippines provides best value for their investment and that there is no need to be positive about it in the Philippines," Brock said in a newspaper column to be published Monday.

The President was expected to meet with representatives of migrant media after lunch. Ms. Aquino's Hong Kong trip is one of several to include Asian financial and business hubs. She will also make government promotion stops in Singapore and Japan, but no dates have been announced, Brock said.

The President is expected to visit Hong Kong at 7 p.m. today and will be back by 5 p.m. tonight, Brock said, adding that he and Finance Secretary Cesar Purisima will be the only Cabinet members who will accompany the President. He also said the Chief Executive has not designated anyone to be government spokesman while the President is in the very short trip. AP with a report from Christine E. Donohue

Economic ties top agenda of two visits

By Nikita Dizon

ABUJAH—The political turmoil surrounding her administration, President Ma has been a great president, is planning to meet with support workers during her scheduled one-day stop in Hong Kong and is organizing a protest when the President arrives here.

On top of the agenda of the visit are her first overseas economic talks.

President Ma will leave early today for Hong Kong and would be back last night.

Ms. Aquino and her cabinet will discuss the expansion of economic relations, tourism, trade, science, culture, and maritime cooperation between the Philippines and Indonesia, as well as the revitalization of the United Nations-Indonesia-Philippines Partnership.

First Asia Growth Area (FAGA) when they meet in Hong Kong, the Department of Foreign Affairs said in a statement.

Indonesia's visit is expected to strengthen the Asian-African growth triangle relations with the Philippines.

The visit would also hopefully boost the Philippines' bid for observer status in the Organization of the Islamic Conference (OIC).

1M jobs created in 2005—Palace

THE GOVERNMENT was able to provide 1.06 million jobs in the last five months of the year, according to a report yesterday.

This means the government is on track to meet its goal to create up to 10 million jobs by 2015, Presidential Management Staff head Regino Tugay said in a statement.

But, he added, by Makabatang showed that as of June 17, more than 10 million people created the new jobs, with the Department of Public Works and Highways having 280,449 people between January and March alone.

Palace for the workers listed as estimated 11.06 million, he said.

The other jobs created by the government in the past five months were in microfinancing (252,259), housing (128,756), agriculture and development (197,756), tourism (98,827) and economic zones (103,896), among others.

"Key components of the job generation program include developing two million hectares of land for agriculture, creating three million micro, small and medium enterprises through credit, technology and marketing support, and developing key industries such as housing, tourism, mining, sports, and information and communications technology," Tugay said. on to power lights and recharge small household appliances such as transistor radios.

Aquino is the "designer" which provides electricity to more than 30 families in the village of Babinawan in Benguet town.

Established in 2000, Ifugao is a non-governmental organization (NGO) established by Ifugao volunteers. It was created through the initiative of the Philippine Rural Reconstruction Movement in Ifugao.

For the Ifugao people, the award is the first of their kind work to earn the international services and social resources from the national government.

Positive recognition

"This is the most positive recognition of the efforts of civil society groups in Ifugao who have been in the forefront in the development sector," said Ifugao Mayor Gen. Nemesio Aquino Jr., vice governor.

"The award and the fund it carries will provide us the impetus to continue our work since we are the only agency, government or non-government, that is doing something constructive for the rice farmers," he said the Ifugao town council.

Aquino said the micro-hydro project was "truly worthy of the household of Ifugao."

Environment-friendly

"It helps us realize that we don't always have to run to the government to get our own path. We can do it ourselves," he said.

He said the prize money would be used to fund local association to maintain the project.

The micro-hydro project is a cheap, renewable and environment-friendly power system developed by Ifugao's "technical engineers" with assistance from design volunteers, Aquino said.

The project was conceived after villagers realized that their precious heritage, the rice terraces, was being abandoned by Ifugao youth who preferred to seek greener pastures in other towns or abroad.

Aquino said rice farms were neglected, the women were trapped to either sell the timber or were unable to prevent it from being sold.

With the forest gone to logging, Ifugao villagers feared that the supply of water in the terraces had dwindled. Fears that for the lower hills had triggered landslides and floods that destroyed properties in lowland areas.

"The micro-hydro project guarantees the continuous to enhance its watersheds, thus providing water in the terraces. It is anticipated that power can spur economic development in the rural areas," Aquino said.

"With the development of more livelihood opportunities, Ifugao will be sustained to stay in the remote area," he said.

National pride

According to national leader for funding, he said the Ifugao terraces had become a symbol of national pride. They are also among the prime tourist destinations in the country.

Aquino also urged Ifugao leaders to make a "voluntary choice" to stay in their own home. The family stay is the promise to take care of the terraces.

He said with this commitment from Ifugao, the agricultural cycle and the accompanying traditions and customs tied in the rice terraces would survive.

In recent times who have gone elsewhere are being called the cities and other urban areas should understand the needs of those who have stayed behind as they will continue to safeguard the Ifugao heritage, he said.

Aquino said the people who started Ifugao in 2000 have remained with the group because they believed in the value of tapping community support and resources to preserve their heritage.

DepEd chief given power over higher education body

By Nicole Puga

THE DEPARTMENT of Education will still support the majority of the Commission on Higher Education (CHED) as a "higher education body," but will continue to support the CHED in its role as a "higher education body," he said. He said that the new order will not be a "higher education body."

CHED is pursuing its mandate and their direction, but what is more important is to be able to see the opportunity to develop and create new programs in the direction of both basic and higher education," he said. The education secretary also said the DepEd would try to use college and university to provide strategic research and development and to provide assistance to improve the education of public schools, where graduates can be the majority of future in the public schools.

"We need to ensure that teacher education institutions produce graduates who are equipped with the competencies required to work in our public schools," he said. The education secretary also said the DepEd would try to use college and university to provide strategic research and development and to provide assistance to improve the education of public schools, where graduates can be the majority of future in the public schools.

Arat and CHED chair Carlos Pascua are expected to meet soon to discuss the administrative coordination of the two bodies.

The CHED was created in 1994 through Republic Act No. 7722. According to the law, the commission shall be "independent and separate from the Department of Education, Culture and Sports (DECS), and attached to the office of the President to administer the program."

The CHED was assumed the Department of Education (DepEd) in 2001 and focused only on basic, elementary and secondary public education. Last week, President Gloria Arroyo issued Executive Order No. 404, placing direct the power to coordinate policy, oversight over the CHED. Corrected books still have same mistakes, claims whistle-blower

By Nicole Puga

AT LEAST 24 grade school textbooks for use in the Philippines have been found to contain errors and corrections, the whistle-blower who discovered the mistakes said.

Antonio Gallego Gas, academic supervisor at Division Office in Quezon City, said finding correction books for the textbooks used in private grade schools was not sufficient to correct the errors. The textbooks were published by Phoenix Publishing House Inc.

Gas said the textbook publishing company's customer of correction books only informed the school that the books contained at least 700 errors.

Gas recently discovered major errors in the books "Simply Science in the 21st Century" and "Understanding English: Art, Culture, Society" by Phoenix Publishing House Inc. He said the errors in the books included errors in grammar.

Errors of content

"The number of correction books for the three new books points it to say that these textbooks have defects. Besides, you cannot correct the mistakes by simply issuing a correction book because these textbooks are of content as well as content," he said in response to Phoenix's statement on Friday that the company would be distributing correction books for the new books.

Last year, he discovered major errors in an Arat's basic book used in the public schools. The textbook "New Basic Education in Mathematics" was subsequently pulled out and corrected by the Department of Education. But Gas said the textbook still contained major errors.

Reading in Phoenix's textbook that it had not corrected any "subject corrections" from over 200 schools using the two books, he said "but only minor errors and administrative errors in these 200 schools did not see the errors. They presumed the two textbooks books are correct when actually, they are incorrect."

English experts

In a statement, Phoenix said the two textbooks were "extensively submitted" for review to the National Book Development Board (NBDB) in February.

The NBDB, the government agency tasked to evaluate textbooks used in private schools, assigned the evaluation of the two books to the English experts from the Department of English and from the National Institute for Science and Mathematics Education Development (NISMED) of the University of the Philippines.

"First of all, it is not plausible and believable for a publisher to create a finished product to the NBDB already to be evaluated. No publisher will do that," he said, adding that based on the new order of the NBDB, publishers could not present their books for evaluation unless there was a complaint lodged against the book by a teacher, parent, director or concerned citizen.

School would use books

He said Phoenix brought the books to the NBDB after he complained about errors in the textbooks as early as November 2004.

Gas wondered how experts from NBDB could find the errors in the books.

"This only means these experts submitted these books despite the errors I said," he said. In a letter to the NBDB dated June 3, Gas continued that Phoenix submitted various textbooks to him for evaluation in the hope that Gov. Arat would adopt the books.

Upon discovery of the errors in the books, he informed the publisher of his findings. In turn, the publisher sent him members of its staff to see the errors on June 7, 2008.

The four Phoenix staff members, Gas recalled, presented him with copies of the two books and assured him that the errors had been corrected. He however still found the same errors, he said.

WIND power is Ilocos Norte's answer to the shortage and high cost of electricity. These 15-story turbines will not pollute the environment besides.

Wind blows Ilocos Norte onto power map

SAMAL, Ilocos Norte—Blowing on a strip of coastal strip along Sagay Bay are wind turbines that have called themselves "clean power" for the province of Ilocos Norte as part of the Philippine Renewable Energy Act.

The wind farm will feed an estimated 15 megawatts (MW) to the Ilocos Norte Electric Corporation (Ilocos Norte Electric Corp.), equivalent to 40 percent of the province's power requirements. A 100 MW wind farm, the wind power plant is composed of 15 turbines, each standing 70 meters in height to the height of a 25-story building. The wind farm can generate a maximum capacity of 20 MW.

"Using renewable wind energy in the country can save a lot of a significant cost to our energy sector," declared power energy director for the Philippines, Chito Cordova, a Senate member and president of National Power Development Corp. (NPPDC).

The firm officials led Philippine energy officials announced that the wind farm is a commercial venture on January of the National Energy Development Corp. along a 100 km stretch in Sagay Bay, Ilocos Norte.

The turbines, all connected to the Luzon power grid, began delivering power to firms last month. "We need to see energy also, we will build a 100 MW wind farm (near the National Power Development Corp.) in Ilocos Norte," said the power director, adding that the wind farm will generate 20 MW of power.

EU leaders battle over bloc's future

BRIEFING—European leaders, their veil of unity shredded in an unprecedented EU summit catastrophe as the weekend, have commenced a hair-brained battle over the future course of the 25 nation bloc.

Reported national income was halfhearted as a European Union summit on long-term financing collapsed for the only time of its history.

Provisions for institutions flow as checks split into two camps, blaming each other for the summit's failure to reach a deal for the 2007-2013 budget, worth about 140 billion euros a year.

The summit had been meant to ELI previously used as the second diagnosis of a seizure.

For those bridging a credibility gap between the European institutions and its citizens, the comic exposed deeply antagonistic views of the EU from across the leaders themselves.

"There are clear differences between the two concepts in Europe that clashed and will always clash," said Jorjani.

"I have felt for a long time this debate would blow up one day," Nolani, which takes over the EU presidency July 1, sneered at the lag-Europe faction.

"That is the fundamental choice believe us. And it is not our Europe you should," he said (p. 100).

A coalition to the budget had been formed, mainly by Seniors and Agriculture Ministers for the vote. The 24 EC members had at least twice a chance to question from the EC, world's 3 billion people last year.

The whole is presented to prove the average 7.7 billion people annually between 2007 and 2012.

But British Prime Minister Tony Blair, who was twice the successful task of leading his country, for the next six months in EC president from July 3, 2005.

"We were not alone at the table," said this.

The 10-week leader had insisted that negotiations on the EU's budget—concerning loans, subsidies, interest, which favour France, be suspended until he would see other countries bring the British rebate.

Hot days mere interlude, says weather bureau

By Herman Bandolina

WEATHER-BUT why the sun is still shining bright and the weather is still scorching hot when the data says the supposedly rainy season has started? The Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (PAGASA) yesterday said that the wet season did not mean having rain every day and that the sun would not be able to beam through clouds.

PAGASA forecast director Ernesto explained that even when much of the equator was still in the summer season, with the northern hemisphere experiencing most of the solar rays and heat as it was tilted toward the sun.

"The general perception is that summer in the country is only over March, April and May, but seasonal shifts sometimes beyond that," Ernesto said.

The temperature surge yesterday was 25 degrees Celsius in 34 degrees Celsius.

Ernesto said the atmosphere in the northern hemisphere—the area north of the equator, and where the Philippines lies—will start to cool when it tilts away from the sun.

"Right now, there is no tropical cyclone threatening the country," Ernesto said, partly explaining the lack of rain, especially in Metro Manila.

More rain is expected over central northern Luzon as a monsoon is believed to be formed there. Likewise, rains are expected over the Visayas and Mindanao as they are affected by the intensified monsoon system.

"The rest of the country, including Metro Manila, will have hot weather," Ernesto said.

RP economy: Most dynamic turnaround story in progress

By Elizabeth L. Sander

On a statement, Lim said separate statements made by Fish and UNL scientists indicate that investors have a positive outlook on the country's economic future, but also express concerns about the government's handling of the situation.

In a research note recently released, Fitch reported the country's overall deficit and debt positions were expected to improve in the next year following the passage of key economic measures.

The credit rating agency sees the budget deficit dropping to 2.7 per cent of total economic output next year to line with government targets.

In a separate document, research report, UNHCR Secretary-General stated the Philippines as the most dynamic containment story in progress in the Asian region, along with Indonesia.

UNEP reported that over the next two years, public sector debt could actually fall by 9 percent of GDP before stabilizing in the second half of the decade.

It still remains for the improvement such as higher car premiums due to the new test bills, lower taxes, to the now-owned National Steel Corp. due to higher yield point strength, and lower roll-forming rates and a stronger roll exchange rate.

UBI also reported that the Philippine was undergoing a "crisis in confidence." UBI said the peso had been outperforming most other Asian currencies and the Philippines was one of the early economies in Asia where stock prices have fallen rather than risen.

Linn, for his part, said "the positive outlook on the country's economic future" was "definitely" demonstrated the 1992 wave of U.S. imports to $16.71 billion in the first quarter of the year from $16.22 billion a year ago.

IMRY believe a great belief in local government, even saying that they are the largest of the concepts tested the often glowing direct savings of the national government. The conviction has been further reinforced in so many years, especially with the experience of judging local government would like the League of Cities has been formed and the United States Park. There have been a number of other factors that have made the national government by local government, a great source of inspiration and hope especially at a time when many of our people seem to have given up on our country and would rather bail out and disengage. If they can find one or three areas where local government has demonstrated that they can get things done and do them well it gives the citizen in it, in putting the development of Commenced in 1987, the program now responds to a long list of requests, providing the participants on the island with the opportunity to continue learning with the help of local and foreign experts. Now, the wide scope of largely unmet needs and serious demands at the rural areas must be considered from different geographical aspects, the different governmental levels, and the various cultural and religious practices and customs, with the RANIC as the vehicle. Through the RANIC, community residents are also empowered to identify participants in analyzing the conditions of their community, to plan and implement projects, to plan and implementing activities and projects to address them. The RANIC, like other services as a training center for agricultural and fishery development, agricultural extension, and fisheries extension, agricultural extension, like support farming, integrated fish management, organic farming, and natural farming systems, the training they provide also focuses on values education, and the development of leadership and community participation programs.

Quantitative and qualitative measures indicate that the program has done much good. Rice and corn production grew sevenfold, and the number of fish and shellfish raised increased 100-fold. The number of participants, substantial income was quite significantly achieved in the production and yield of vegetables, legumes and root crops. The National Institute of Fisheries (NIFAD) reported an increase in production of 17,322.3 tons in 1987, 19,940.4 tons in 2000, a 25-percent increase. Meanwhile, the Integrated Practical Health Units reported substantial reduction (up to half) in epidemic diseases and

From a national perspective, the much heralded Agropolitan Pathways Movement, first set in motion by Congress in the mid 1970s to ensure by helping to bring the rural economy back to the center of the country, is now being taken up by the private sector. The private sector is now being asked to contribute to the development of the rural economy. The private sector is now being asked to contribute to the development of the rural economy. The private sector is now being asked to contribute to the development of the rural economy.

Like Regions Command. Toporganes reports dramatic payoffs to their efforts in terms of significant increases in agricultural production and yields, and lower household incomes. Average per hectare net yields rose from 4.5 metric tons (MT) before the program, to 5.5 MT now. The improvement is even more dramatic, from 1.5 MT to 8.2 MT. Yield of high-value common corn crops doubled from 8 to 15 MT, while fish production rose dramatically from only 2 percent to 62 percent. Annual household income of almost 4,000 households reports will rise due to an increase from P22,000 to P85,000.

Nigeria's Federal and State Governments are not isolated cases. Similar racist events abound in other LDCs around the country including in Trinidad, Bolivia, Rwanda, Haiti, Senegal, Bangladesh, Nigeria, Liberia, Malaysia, Taiwan, Sri Lanka, Vietnam, and elsewhere, such as programs of Nigeria's Federal and State governments and a few

Partnerships

A comment thread to these LAM success stories is active partnerships at the local level among various government entities, the private sector and civil society groups. Through their cooperation and sometimes just among the various stakeholders in agriculture development, peace efficiency and effectiveness is achieved, and leadership is shown as a much better way.

Filinvest turns to IFC for $40-M loan

By Elizabeth L. Sanchez
and Don C. Dunlap

THE FILINVEST Land Inc. of the Cotabato family is turning to the World Bank's private sector arm, International Finance Corp., for a $40-M loan to build a 140-unit hotel for the growing number of tourists.

The Bangkok-based firm, however, has also approved the new currency swap that would enable the Cotabato family to secure a loan from the IFC.

IFC Office-in-Charge Antonio Serrano said he has been involved in the Cotabato family's financial situation since it was founded in 1999. Serrano said the new proceeds to FIL would be distributed to the group, amounting to $1.35 million.

In a distribution, the group said the proceeds would go to the group's private sector arm, International Finance Corp., to secure a $40-M loan to build the "first hotel building in the country."

The project, that will be funded by the new loan, will involve the construction of a hotel with 140 units in the Cotabato family's new hotel.

Philippine Development Corp., FIL's parent firm, will guarantee the loan. IFC's country manager, Vito Rizzo, expects a deal with FIL within the next month. He said he has been involved in the Cotabato family's financial situation since it was founded in 1999. Serrano said the new proceeds to FIL will give people who cannot afford to stay in the Cotabato family's new hotel.

Serrano said that the project, however, will be high and low. In possible loan to FIL will give the firm the ability to provide more people in the Cotabato family's new hotel.

The IFC said this will be in support of the government's effort to provide people more affordable housing.

Napocor seen to save up to P5.9B this year

State firm cuts use of diesel-run plants

By Abigail L. Ho

THE STATE-RUN National Power Corp. has cut down its use of diesel power plants and is now expecting to save up to P5.9 billion.

Although fuel prices have been escalating in the world market, Napocor has gradually reduced power production from its diesel-fired plants and shifted to coal-fired, geothermal and hydroelectric power plants.

Based on a presentation made earlier in the year, Napocor president Cyril Del Callar said the state firm last year saved about P3.4 billion due to its continued implementation of economic load dispatching. This was almost four times the 2003 savings of P854 million.

Economic load dispatching simply means meeting power demand using available generating units at the least possible cost. This may also mean dispatching power from plants that use cheaper fuel at certain times of the day to cut down on operating costs.

Napocor's coal-fired power plants, as well as those of its independent power producers, have also started blending local coal with imported coal to fuel their generation facilities. This resulted in savings of P33 million.

According to Del Callar, the Mirant Corp. gets 20 percent of its coal volume from the local market to run its Sual plant. The bulk of the plant's coal requirements still comes from China.

He said that much cost-cutting had to be done to keep Napocor afloat. Fuel costs, in particular, had given Napocor a huge headache.

"2004 was the worst case for us, in terms of fuel costs," he said. "We have to continue all of these (cost-cutting measures)."

For this year, he said, further reductions in the use of diesel-fired plants would have to be made, particularly in the Luzon grid.

Consumer and Oil Price Watch chair Raul Concepcion, coming from a recent meeting with Del Callar, said reducing the use of diesel-run plants would not only result in cost savings for Napocor but also ease the impact of the 10-percent value-added tax on power rates.

The expanded VAT law, which will take effect on July 1, imposes a 10-percent VAT on the power sector. Prior to the enactment of law, the power sector was exempted from the VAT.

IMF airs concern over VAT cap on input tax credits

By Doris C. Dumlao

MEMBERS of an International Monetary Fund mission are concerned over a provision in the new value-added tax (VAT) law imposing a cap on input tax credits, which is seen to be inconsistent with international best practice.

Sources privy to ongoing discussions between the government and the IMF representatives said the mission from Washington appreciated the recent strides taken by Philippine officials to improve the country's fiscal standing.

The passage of the VAT law, for instance, is seen as the most significant piece of tax legislation in aid of the government's fiscal reform efforts.

One source said members of the visiting mission told Philippine officials to "keep up the good work." But they also cautioned Philippine economic managers not to become complacent, as the country is not out of the woods yet.

The mission came at a time when the country is in the grip of a fresh political upheaval triggered by allegations that President Macapagal-Arroyo had rigged the last presidential elections and that her husband, eldest son and brother-in-law were involved in illegal gambling payoffs.

The source said the IMF, which has long been urging the legislation of an increase in the VAT rate from 10 to 12 percent, was generally happy with the overall package recently signed into law, "except for one or two provisions."

The mission was referring to the cap on input tax credits—a provision likewise being criticized by private tax experts and businessmen.

The input tax is paid by a manufacturer for the importation and purchase of raw materials and services. This will be offset by the output tax imposed on the sale or lease of taxable goods, services or properties.

The input tax was originally meant to address the under-reporting of output VAT and the over-reporting of input VAT by non-compliant taxpayers.

The cap on input tax credits was originally pegged at 90 percent, which translated to a one-percent minimum VAT. But during the bicameral deliberation, the cap was lowered to 70 percent, which translated to a 3-percent-age tax.

The IMF mission said that the cap on input taxes would cause distortions in tax payments.

Paul Cooper, a tax expert and director of PricewaterhouseCoopers, said a 3-percent minimum VAT would more likely hit sellers of goods than the sellers of services, as their proportion of taxable inputs was lower.

Cooper said no VAT would be paid when using labor, but there would be VAT on the purchase of goods.

"Consequently, there will be a bias toward consuming services over goods," Cooper said. "Businesses may have to obtain goods from the informal (and potentially tax-evading) sector as there will be no input tax paid for the purchase—in other words, the bill may actively encourage less tax-compliant behavior."

As a result, Cooper said, "business structures may change."

"Expect buy-sell distributors to convert into commission agents," as this reduces the risk that they will need to pay more than should be paid under a VAT system to cover the 3 percent minimum VAT," he added. "Tax professionals will also have a field day."

The IMF's third highest official earlier said that the recent passage of the VAT measure would help the Philippines reduce its fiscal vulnerabilities.

Agustin Carstens, the IMF's deputy managing director who was briefly in town for a capital market forum, said that the government must also focus on improvements in tax administration.

Based on the government's estimates, the VAT reform could raise anywhere from P28 billion to P31 billion this year, and P97 billion to P105 billion next year, creating room in the government's budget to increase spending for infrastructure, social services and education.

Frilly and frothy, but not fizzy enough

By Gilda Cady

PERHAPS the ultimate accolade for Disney's "Beauty and the Beast" was made by the powerful theater critic Frank Rich of the New York Times, who wrote in 1991, "What is the best Broadway musical comedy score of the year? Make no mistake about it, it is Beauty and the Beast."

Back in the good old days, when all the musicals were made by the same few people, it was a bit of a surprise that about the Broadway review that came a year later, but the musical has been

It also spawned a musical hit in the film song, sung through songs by a Broadway legend, Angela Lansbury as Mrs. Potts, and made everyone who took the show to heart and love it.

When "Beauty and the Beast" finally opened on the stage and opened on Broadway in 1992, it grabbed 11 Tony nominations and became a huge success. Together with the even more triumphant staging of "The Lion King" under Julie Taymor's direction, Disney inspired the Broadway to launch a re-

Macau's heritage of faith

LUTUWAI Maunaloa[®] is a Filipino catch-phrase for a done-but-funny deal. It is named in a local accident in the '60s run by a Filipino car racer who had been allegedly crashed in a game in Maunaloa. Despite the word's unsavory roots, Maunaloa the place is intensely interesting and picturesque.

A former Singapore colony, Macau is now divided. All-Portuguese, since Portugal's decolonization turned it into a trading port like Hong Kong, Macau has been built in European style.

Why? (connect with Mission School and San Ysidro) to find that they all agreed to this strange Chinese place. John Paul I could have gained China with a visit via the Catholic Bishops' org where his message of exorcism and forgiveness would have made no sense here. Of the Vatican and China have no diplomatic relations.

But it's not too late to do the walk of faith, because I travel, together with Linghui my Taiwanese Abbot to Pyongyang (Linhui had made the pre-World Youth Day pilgrimage to Warsaw on June 4-7, and is inviting many delegates to the June 29-31 and June 25-26 trips to this harbor.
